

The Freeski World Cup Corvatsch will be on for the 2nd and 3rd March 2018

Riders were treated to a perfectly shaped and extremely creative event course within Corvatsch Park for the 6th edition of the Freeski World Cup Corvatsch. Following two very successful practice days the international field of the world's top freeskiers await qualification for Men & Women on Friday 2nd March 2018. Those who can throw down hard enough to score the big points and make it through to finals will compete on Saturday 3rd March 2018 within Corvatsch Park, with all the action available live in real time via <http://corvatsch.ch/live/>.

These past days Corvatsch Park has played host to the world's freeski elite and riders like James Wood (GBR), Andri Ragetti (SUI), Jesper Tjader (SWE) & Kai Mahler (SUI) have been slaying the features and throwing down some big tricks with super style high above Silvaplana near the beautiful St Moritz, Switzerland. Riders have been focused on training and dialling in their big tricks and full runs ready for the upcoming Freeski World Cup event in Corvatsch, which is endorsed by the AFP (Association of Freeskiing Professionals) as a Platinum level event and has a total prize purse of 50.000 Swiss Francs. Many international Olympic athletes together with the top Swiss riders will be on course for the Freeski World Cup Corvatsch qualification, all of whom have stated what an excellent and creative course is in place for this year's event.
